THESE RESULTS ARE SIGNIFICANT, BUT OTHER RESEARCHERS BELIEVE THE STUDY'S DESIGN IS FLAWED BECAUSE IT DID NOT TAKE INTO ACCOUNT THE FACT THAT THE TWO GROUPS OF STUDENTS WERE NOT IDENTICAL. FOR EXAMPLE, STUDENTS WHO CHOSE TO TAKE THE COURSE MAY HAVE BEEN MORE MOTIVATED THAN THOSE WHO DID NOT.

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Supreme Court today ruled that the federal government can sue a state to force it to pay back federal money. The decision is a landmark victory for the federal government in its fight against states that have refused to pay back federal money.

The case, Alabama v. United States, was brought by the federal government against the state of Alabama. Alabama had refused to pay back federal money that it had received from the federal government. The federal government had sued Alabama in federal court, but Alabama had refused to pay back the money.

The Supreme Court, in a 5-4 decision, ruled in favor of the federal government. The majority opinion, written by Justice Souter, held that the federal government has the right to sue a state to force it to pay back federal money. The majority opinion also held that the federal government can sue a state to force it to pay back federal money that it has received from the federal government.

The dissenting opinion, written by Justice Scalia, argued that the federal government does not have the right to sue a state to force it to pay back federal money. The dissenting opinion also argued that the federal government cannot sue a state to force it to pay back federal money that it has received from the federal government.

The decision is a landmark victory for the federal government in its fight against states that have refused to pay back federal money. It also marks a significant step in the federal government's efforts to enforce the law.
